

I do not pay my phone bill to be interrupted by people trying to sell me things. My parents are in their 80s, and every time they go to the phone, it is a difficult task. The phone lines may be considered private property, but my phone number is private, and should not be at the beck and call of any business. Where is my right of privacy in this situation?